CONVICT WOMAN OF MURDER IN BURNING STEP CHILD TO DEATH

Verdict In Second Degree Returned By Erie Jury

COURTROOM, ERIE, Pa., May 24.—Mrs. Edna Deshunk Mumbulo early today was found guilty of second degree murder for the burning to death of her 11-year-old step-daughter, Hilda.

The jury deliberated ten hours before announcing its finding.

Counsel for the woman immediately filed motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Mumbulo took the verdict calmly. She seemed almost disinterested as her attorney, William Carney, called for a poll of the eleven men and one woman comprising the jury.

The state had tried Mrs. Mumbulo on a first degree murder charge for the death of Hilda who was fatally burned when flaming gasoline was spattered over her while she lay asleep in her bed in the Mumbulo apartment here.

Her husband, Ralph Mumbulo, probably will go to trial on a murder charge in connection with his daughter's death in September.

Mumbulo and his wife were charged with having conspired to kill the girl, Mumbulo's daughter by his first marriage, in order to share a $6,500 legacy left the girl by her mother.

The girl was killed last March, Mumbulo and Edna Deshunk were married one week later in Montrose, Pa.

The case went to the jury at 5:10 o'clock last evening and the verdict was returned at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

After the verdict was read, Mrs. Mumbulo was led back to her cell in Erie County jail to await imposition of sentence. Under Pennsylvania law, conviction on a second degree murder charge carries with it a sentence of from ten to twenty years in prison.

The trial of Mrs. Mumbulo was featured by opposing expert testimony as to whether a static spark caused by friction while Mrs. Mumbulo was cleaning a silk dress with gasoline could have started the fire which claimed Hilda's life.

The state contended Mrs. Mumbulo, who was uninjured, could not have escaped being burned had she carried a pan of flaming gasoline from the kitchen of her apartment into the child's bedroom and attempted to throw it from a window as she claimed.

Defense counsel countered with expert testimony that although the distance from the kitchen to the bedroom window was only six feet, experiments had proved a pan of flaming gasoline could be carried ninety-six feet without burning the person carrying it.

MAIL PILOT FORCED TO ABANDON PLANE WHEN MOTOR FAILS

Uses Parachute To Land Safely At Bedford, Ohio

BEDFORD, May 24.—Samuel J. Samson, New York-Cleveland air mail pilot, was forced to leap by parachute from his plane near here early today when the motor of his craft went dead.

The flyer slipped to earth safely although he narrowly escaped death when his parachute grazed a high tension line.

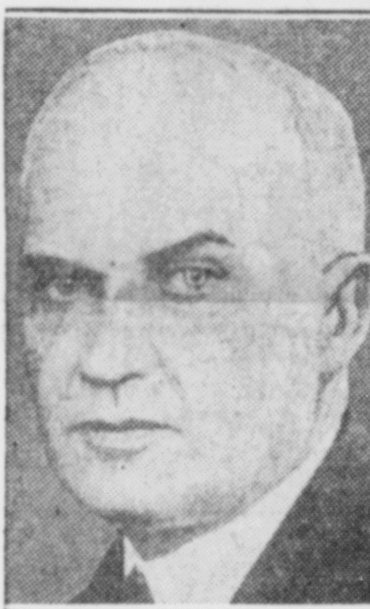

The airplane crashed several hundred yards from where Samson landed, it burst into flames and was completely destroyed.

Samson saved the mail packets he was carrying by dumping them overboard before he leaped.

Samson said he took off from Cleveland airport about 1:45 a. m. His plane seemed to be running perfectly for the first few miles. As he neared Bedford, however, the motor of the craft began to go bad, finally stopping dead, according to the flyer.

Samson said he decided to leap rather than face the risk of crashing into a building. He dumped the mail pouches and then went overboard. A brisk wind carried his parachute safely away from the disabled craft. Outside of being unnerved by the accident, Samson landed none the worse for the experience.

EX-ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY IS ILL

LONDON, May 24.—Gravest anxiety was felt today over the condition of Lord Davidson, former archbishop of Canterbury, critically ill at his home here. Because of his advanced age of 82 years, little hope is held out for his recovery.

A bulletin issued by his physicians this morning said the former archbishop had lapsed into unconsciousness.

"His lordship is gradually sinking," the bulletin read.

Influence Of Movies On Children Shown At Meet

Psychologists Listen To Results Of New Research

RESULTS of a two-year investigation of the influence of motion pictures on sleep of children, explained by Prof. Samuel Renshaw, psychologist, of Ohio State University, was one of the most interesting papers read at the opening session Friday of the fifth annual two-day conference of the Midwestern Psychological Association at Antioch College.

Prof. Renshaw's findings will be startling, he said, but the conclusions to be reached will be carefully guarded by the Payne research fund of New York, which is supplying financial aid for investigation at Ohio State and several other schools.

State wards from the ages of 6 to 16 in the bureau of juvenile research are being used in experiments and are tested in their sleep following visits to theaters.

With a delicate device that records the slightest movement of the children from the time they go to bed at 9 p. m. until they arise at 6 a. m., every minute of the sleep is analyzed. Ordinarily a child begins sleeping soundly about two hours after he has gone to bed. The Payne fund is interested in knowing if complaints of parents that their children sometimes suffer nightmares or sleep-walking or are delayed in getting to sleep after visiting a movie, are general.

After seeing a certain film, one child left his bed while still asleep and asked an attendant for a pencil and paper, saying he wanted to write a song, experimenters found. Discussions on animal behavior occupied most of the program for the second session in the evening. Heinrich Kluever, of the Behavior Research Fund, Chicago, presented the results of his experiments to determine "Some of the Functions Involved in the Reactions of Monkeys to Sensory Stimuli." The lecture was supplemented by a motion picture demonstration of "relational" reactions in monkeys.

"Right-handedness in White Rats," also with moving picture demonstration, was a study conducted by Loh Sang Tsai and Seligfried Maurer, University of Chicago in an attempt to correlate their evidence of this trait with the distribution of water in the two cerebral hemispheres.

EUROPE PREPARING FOR WAR PUBLISHER SAYS IN INTERVIEW

Intense Nationalism Seen By Liveright Following Trip

NEW YORK, May 24.—Europe is preparing for another war.

Statesmen are talking peace, peace, peace but the common people are thinking in terms of intense nationalism.

The general feeling in Europe is that the London naval conference was a "flop."

These are the grim impressions brought back from Europe today by Horace Liveright, well known publisher, who talked to the heads of various governments and "felt the pulse" of the common people.

"Everywhere I went the feeling seemed to be that another war is inevitable," said Liveright, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"In each country I visited the people seemed to feel that they had to be the ones to be ready for the next struggle."

"The horrors of the great war appeared to be completely forgotten."

Liveright visited France, Germany, England and the Scandinavian countries.

"I was never so appalled at the intense spirit of nationalism manifested," he said.

"The cabinet members with whom I talked chatted of peace but the measurement of their conviction by the yardstick of nationalism."

"But one obtained even a better feel of the situation from the man in the street—the taxi driver, the hotel porter, the worker."

"France hates everybody. She is insanely jealous of the United States."

"Germany is not supposed to have an army."

"But I have every reason to believe that every able-bodied youth in Germany is getting military training. Every young boy there is a member of a hunting club. They drill regularly and practice shooting and the League of Nations can't do a thing about it."

"Germany is hungry to get back what she has lost."

"And Scandinavia is the outstanding example of burning nationalism."

"The Danes hate the Norwegians and the Swedes, the Swedes hate the Norwegians and Denmark and Norway hates Sweden and Denmark."

"Norway is changing her language as rapidly as possible so that their daily literature will not have any Swedish or Danish flavor."

"England is the most pacific of all the countries I visited."

Liveright said that C. J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian parliament and Norway's representative in the League of Nations, was the outstanding proponent for international peace in Europe today.

Regarding the London naval conference, Liveright said:

"Everyone seemed to feel that the conference was a flop. I did not talk to anyone, statesman or hotel worker, who didn't consider it was a failure."

"Of course, the statesmen always modified their statement by adding that the conference was a step in the right direction."

IMPRISONMENT OF WOMAN LEADER IN INDIA INCITES MOB

Thousands Enroll In Cause Resenting Prison Term

BOMBAY, May 24.—A woman-poetess and crusader—brought a new crisis in India today as she began a nine months prison sentence.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, Indian poetess and self-styled "Indian Joan of Arc" took upon herself much of the responsibility for inciting the salt raids on the government salt pans at Dharasana where more than 600 volunteer raiders were reported injured, and went to prison.

The arrest of Mahatma Gandhi and Abbas Tyabji, leaders who were succeeded by Mrs. Naidu, already had aroused the strength of the opposition against British rule in India.

Where hundreds had been the maver of the throngs, thousands swarmed. More than 200,000 "passive" opponents of the British were reported to have taken part in the demonstration.

Four hundred police stemmed the tide in Bombay, but merely because the milling thousands still followed the pleas of their leaders to remain "passive" in their demonstrations.

Their songs of defiance and patriotism.

BOMB DAMAGES CHICAGO HOME

CHICAGO, May 24.—A dynamite bomb almost completely destroyed the home of John Sheridan here early today. The force of the blast shook a large section of the city's south side.

Placed on the porch of the two-story brick residence the bomb shattered the entire front section of the house and did an estimated damage of $5,000. Windows for blocks around were shattered by the explosion's force.

Sheridan's three children were asleep on a porch above the blast, but none was injured. Mrs. Sheridan collapsed and is under the care of a physician today. The labor leader's home was bombed last August in a similar manner.

Sheridan is head of nineteen local teamsters' and chauffeurs' unions.

WAR VETERAN KILLS SELF AFTER MURDER OF FOUR-DAY BRIDE

Ill Health Blamed; Newlyweds Die Hand-In-Hand

GLENCOE, Ill., May 24.—Despondency over ill health was blamed today for a murder and suicide pact which culminated here last night when William Cochrane Murray, Toronto war veteran, shot his bride of four days to death and ended his own life with a bullet in the temple.

Police found their bodies in their automobile here where they had parked in a favorite lovers' trysting place on the shore of Lake Michigan. The man's right hand clutched an automatic pistol, and his left hand held that of his bride.

They were identified as Mr. and Mrs. William Cochrane Murray of Toronto, Ont., and were registered at a Chicago hotel. They had arrived here Tuesday.

Investigation disclosed that the young bridegroom, a veteran of the World War, had suffered an attack since the couple's arrival in Chicago. The physician who attended him said Murray had indicated that he had not wished his bride to know of his condition and seemed depressed that she had discovered his ailment. He had apparently been gassed while overseas.

The embrace in which the couple was found led police to believe they had planned and agreed on dying together. The same police officer who found the bodies met the couple parked in their car at the same location the night before. In a conversation then they said they were on their honeymoon.

Murray had shot his bride through the right temple, then apparently turned the gun upon himself and sent a bullet through the right side of the head. He used a small calibre pistol.

Murray had told his physician that he had recently returned from six years' engineering experience in Africa. His wife, it was learned, had been a nurse.

Authorities, in searching the couple's hotel room today found a letter indicating that they had agreed on a suicide pact. They had written it on Tuesday and addressed it to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Saynor, Toronto.

CLEVELAND POLICE PROBE MYSTERY IN "DEATH RING" CASE

Body Exhumed When Insurance Policies Discovered

CLEVELAND, May 24.—Investigation into the mystery surrounding the death of Philip May, 55-year-old apartment house caretaker, today followed a strange line upon a rumor that a "death speculation" ring operates in a west side neighborhood.

The apartment house caretaker died more than five months ago. County authorities learned recently, however, that a number of insurance policies were taken out on him before his death, which was reported to have been due to a fractured skull resulting from a fall. Numerous other such "accidental deaths" have occurred in the district, according to authorities.

May's body was exhumed yesterday and Coroner A. J. Pearce established in an autopsy that the man did not die of a fractured skull as was reported in his death certificate. Dr. F. J. Wood, who attended May at the time of his death, insisted today however, that the man died of a fractured skull received when he fell down a flight of stairs.

Authorities today were examining the vital organs of May's body.

BUS AND TRUCK DRIVERS WILL BE CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

CANTON, O., May 24.—Edward Brashear, 29, bus driver of Pitts- burg, and Carl Craig, 26, a truck driver of Canton, today were charged with manslaughter by Coroner T. C. McQuate in connection with a bus crash near here last Sunday morning in which two persons were killed and nineteen others injured.

The accident occurred on the Akron-Canton highway when a bus rammed into a truck that was parked along the road for repairs during the early morning darkness of last Sunday.

Brashear is still in a hospital here with serious injuries received in the accident. He is expected to recover, according to physicians.

BANDIT ROBS MUSICIAN AND WIFE IN HOTEL ROOM

COACH IS SHOT ACCIDENTALLY CLEANING GUN

Clark Baker Wounded Seriously But Will Recover, Said

Clark Baker, 24, coach of Cedarville High School, is in a serious condition at McClellan Hospital recovering from a bullet wound in the left lung just above the heart accidentally self-inflicted while he was engaged in cleaning a .22 caliber revolver at 6:15 p. m. Friday at the residence of Mrs. Flora Dobbins, N. Main St., Cedarville, where he and his wife make their home.

The revolver which Baker was cleaning and oiling preparatory to putting it away for the summer, was a gun ordinarily loaded with blanks and used as a timer's gun during the high school basketball games last season.

The coach was in his upstairs room when the accident occurred.

Baker was taken to the office of Dr. H. C. Schick, Cedarville physician, and later was removed to the Xenia hospital in an ambulance of the McClellan undertaking establishment.

Hospital attaches said that Baker had passed a comfortable night Friday and that unless there are unforeseen complications the coach will recover rapidly. The bullet pierced the left lung but no attempt will be made to remove it because it lodged in a place which it is believed will cause no disturbance or ill effects.

Baker, whose home is near Gallipolis, O., is a graduate of Rio Grande College and has been coach at Cedarville High School for one year, being re-elected recently for next year.

RICHARDSON TO BE EXECUTED MONDAY

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—It was indicated today that the state board of clemency will not recommend that Governor Myers Y. Cooper interfere with plans for the electrocution of John Richardson, Akron, who was convicted of murdering Steve Pierson, a waiter, during a holdup at a roadside near Akron.

Coroner McQuate declared in his report today that the truck driver failed to display lights at a sufficient distance away to prevent the crash. The bus driver was charged in the report with not having his vehicle under control to guarantee sufficient safety to his passengers.

A recommendation that Brashear and Craig be held for action of the Stark County grand jury was contained in the report of the coroner.

Brashear is still in a hospital here with serious injuries received in the accident. He is expected to recover, according to physicians.

Lebert Lombardo Is Victim; Jewelry, Cash Stolen

CLEVELAND, May 24.—A lone bandit early today forced his way into the hotel room of Lebert Lombardo, one of the four Lombardo brothers of Royal Canadian Orchestra fame, and robbed the musician and his wife, Carol, of $500 in cash, and jewelry valued at $1,600.

The holdup occurred just as the Lombardos were preparing to leave the city following an engagement at a local theater with the Royal Canadians.

Lombardo was packing at the time. Mrs. Lombardo had gone down to the lobby of the hotel. She told police that as she was returning to her room a young man boarded the elevator and got off at the ninth floor with her.

The man, she said, followed her to the door of her room. As she turned, he quickly slipped a mask over his face, drew a revolver, and roughly shoved her through the door.

Holding Lombardo at bay with the revolver, the bandit bound Mrs. Lombardo to a chair and then tied the musician.

The gunman took $500 from Lombardo's pockets, snatched a diamond ring and brooch from Mrs. Lombardo, and then hurriedly fled through the door of the room.

AMY JOHNSON LANDS SHIP IN AUSTRALIA AFTER LONG FLIGHT

Plucky Girl Shows Nonchalance As She Stops Plane

PORT DARWIN, Australia, May 24.—Amy Johnson, radiant spirit of the modern girl, slid into the air field here today in a light sport plane and combed her hair.

In back of her was the whole-hearted adulation of the British empire. But it wasn't important.

The 23-year-old aviatrix had spanned 11,000 miles of the hardest flying territory there is in temperate or tropic belts.

"I'm so happy," she said. "The last hop (a span of 500 miles from Timor Island to Australia) was excellent and I enjoyed it all the way."

Miss Johnson was a perfect example of what Australia likes—nonchalance. As soon as she cut the switch, Amy lifted herself over the cockpit.

Port Darwin, nearly every one that lives there was on hand, was prepared to help a weary girl to her well-earned rest.

A radiant figure hopped to the ground.

She took off her hat, and out came the pocket comb.

Then, the crowd arrived. The "three cheers and a tiger" couldn't get started—everyone kept on shouting.

Carried on the shoulders of a multitude, Amy Johnson was taken to a royal reception.

BATTLE TO SUSPEND IMMIGRATION TO BE LAUNCHED AT HOUSE

Measure Advanced To Help Present Unemployment

WASHINGTON, May 24.—A determined fight for suspension of immigration until unemployment conditions are remedied throughout the country will be made during the closing days of the present session. Representative Albert Johnson (R) of Washington, chairman of the house immigration committee, said today.

Encouraged by pledges of support after he first broached the subject to the house, Johnson indicated he has a surprise move in prospect which will force a house vote on the proposition.

Johnson declared his belief that President Hoover would approve the movement and asserted he has received demands from all parts of the country for an immigration moratorium.

"Why should we be admitting people from any country to jobs here in this time of unemployment?" he asked. "I think the president will be with us. The senate will not delay on that."

"No American citizen can go to Mexico, or to Canada, or to England, or to France, or to any other country that I know anything about and take a job away from a native in any one of those countries. This is so by law."

The unemployment situation also will be brought forward by the immigration committee in making a campaign for passage of the Harris bill, placing Mexican immigration on a quota of about 1,900 a year.

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Having admitted shooting to death Michael Harrington, 66, his father-in-law, Monday night as a result of domestic troubles, Frank Hutchinson, 35, a night watchman, was being held in the county jail here today pending investigation.

Prosecuting Attorney John J. Chester began an investigation that brought about Hutchinson's confession which was supported by Hutchinson's wife, Marie, 33.

Mrs. Hutchinson said her husband shot her father when Harrington intervened to protect her from Hutchinson.

INFANT MURDERED AND PUT IN CREEK

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Authorities today were at a loss to explain the apparent murder of a month-old baby girl which was found in a sack, weighted with a rock, in Big Walnut Creek east of Westerville, late yesterday.

Annual Junior - Senior Prom Is Enjoyed

The lovely colors of spring time suggestive of a beautiful garden were combined to an interesting decorative note in the gymnasium of Central High school, when members of the Junior class were hosts to the seniors, members of the faculty, board members and their wives, at the annual class reception, the premier of the school social calendar, which marked the beginning of the closing exercises, Friday night.

The gymnasium was converted a spring bower for the dancers. The crepe paper wisteria and lilies formed a roof while the floor of the hall were handsomely decorated with peonies, geraniums, palms and ferns. At one side of the room was an old fashioned well from which punch was served. The orchestra pit was banked with a profusion of spring flowers, palms and ferns surrounded by a dainty lattice fence. In one corner of the garden were tables for card players and those who did not dance.

The grand march, the first feature dance, was led by Mr. Birch Bell, president of the Junior class and Miss Esther Briddle. They were followed by the president, Mr. Harold Bull and vice-president, Miss Jean Marshall of the senior class; then Prof. and Mrs. Louis Hammerle and other board members and the faculty.

Honoring the seniors whose class flower is the pansy there was a Pansy Waltz at which time each guest was presented a pansy. At 10 o'clock guests were invited to the dining hall which was decorated as a Japanese Garden. Genuine hand painted Japanese lanterns were used over the lights of the room. Many spring flowers and much greenery was used while the small tables were decorated in a color scheme of green and white.

Appointments and place cards were Japanese style. A delicious two course luncheon was served. Following the luncheon, dancing was resumed and the first feature was a "Rain Dance" in which guests were furnished caps, horns and confetti. The "Silver Rumble" was the last feature dance, the senior class colors being green and silver. Balloons were dropped from the ceiling upon the dancers. Preceding the luncheon a "Butterfly Hop" was held and Mr. Merton Leinberger and Miss Lorene Acton received a large box of candy as the prize for stopping under the lucky butterfly.

Music was furnished by Karl Rolin and his orchestra from Springfield. Chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. Hammerle, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bone.

COUPLE INJURED AS AUTOS COLLIDE ON PIKE FRIDAY NIGHT

Mrs. O. T. Ritter, Springfield, suffered a slight concussion of the brain and bruises and her husband, a city employee at Dayton, received minor cuts and bruises when the auto in which they were riding in Dayton after attending funeral services for Ritter's mother was badly damaged in a collision on Swadner's hill on the Fairfield Pike Friday night.

Two other occupants of the car, including the driver, whose names were not learned, were reported to have escaped serious injury.

The accident occurred when the machine in which the Ritters were riding in the rear seat collided with another car it attempted to pass on the hill. The second machine was occupied by colored people.

Mrs. Ritter and her husband were brought to Xenia by Fleming Dean, W. Market St., this city, a passing motorist, and their injuries were dressed at the office of Dr. F. M. Chambliss. Ritter is a member of Springfield Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and Dr. Chambliss is Xenia Aerie physician.

Local Eagles interested themselves in behalf of the Ritters and obtained a taxi in which they were driven to Dayton later in the evening.

The auction was conducted by Earl Koogler, Beaver Creek Twp. auctioneer and these were the first poppies sold Saturday.

Afterward, members of Joseph P. Moody Post, No. 85, American Legion, the Legion women's auxiliary, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and girls and women who had volunteered their services, began the sale of memorial poppies throughout the city.

ELECTED TO PREMIER ROLL

Miss Olive White And Harold Bull Honored By Class; Class Day Exercises

HAROLD BULL

HAVING performed the greatest services for their school, in the opinion of their classmates, throughout the four-year course, Miss Olive White and Harold Bull, Xenia Central High School seniors, were announced Friday as eligible for membership on the "Premier Roll," annual senior class honor.

The disclosure was made at annual class day exercises held Friday afternoon.

As a result of being chosen for the honor by a popular vote of members of the graduating class, these two students will receive the Premier rose at commencement exercises the night of June 2.

The awards are not scholastic ones but are based on active participation in various school activities during the four years.

Miss White has been prominently identified with diversified activities. In her sophomore year she was vice president of her class and in her junior year was class president. This year she had a part in Xenia's senior class play and has served as co-editor of the Central High "Review," school weekly. Her home is on Fairground Ave.

Harold Bull, who lives on the Stevenson Road, is president of the senior class and in his junior year was vice president. He was a member of the cast for the senior class play and was business manager of the school weekly during his junior year. He resigned the position early this year. He was also a member of the Boys' Glee Club and the high school debating team.

The vote for the Premier Roll students was taken by the seniors last Monday.

Class Day exercises opened with a few announcements by Principal F. R. Woodruff after which Harold

OLIVE WHITE

Bull, senior class president, presided over the assembly.

The welcoming address was delivered by Hugh Espey after which Sara Davidson read the class history. The Premier Roll students were announced by S. A. Evjen, teacher.

Next on the program was the class prophecy, given jointly by John Pulliam and Richard Moore through megaphones.

Miss Davidson then made the announcement that the "Cen Sen," school annual, will not be published until May 29 due to an unforeseen delay.

Miss Fannie K. Haynes, Latin teacher, was presented with a remembrance by Marjorie Shoemaker, on behalf of the senior girls, as a token of their appreciation.

An interesting feature of the exercises was the reading by Jean Marshall of the results of a vote recently taken by the seniors as to the best looking, most popular, best dressed, most conscientious students in the class. A number of seniors were named as recipients of annual "awards."

The class will be read by Ralph Baldwin and the farewell talk was given by Dorothy Lunford, a junior. The exercises closed with the singing of the school song by the assemblage.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN TRAIN HITS AU TO AT CROSSING

Mrs. Martha Peterson, living on a farm a mile west of Spring Valley, suffered a possible broken left leg and painful cuts and bruises when the sedan in which she and her son, Tiche, 15, were riding stalled on the Lower Bellbrook Pike crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Spring Valley and was struck by a freight train at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon.

A view of the track in the direction from which the train was approaching was partly obscured and the youth, who was driving, failed to observe the train until the car had reached the crossing. He applied the brakes too late and the machine stopped on the tracks.

The driver leaped from the car to safety and his mother also attempted to jump out of the machine through the door on the driver's side. As she alighted on the running board the locomotive struck the sedan, overturning it.

Mrs. Peterson was removed to her home where an examination was to be made Saturday to ascertain whether she suffered a leg fracture as was at first believed.

Two colored residents of Springfield escaped injury when the touring car in which they were riding toward Yellow Springs was crowded off the Springfield Pike on Jacoby's hill, north of Goes, crashed through a guard rail and landed on the traction rails running parallel with the highway Friday night. The car was damaged but did not upset.

Harry Jackson, deputy marshal of Yellow Springs, who was assigned by Mayor D. H. Fittz to investigate the crash, learned from the colored man and eye-witnesses at the scene of the accident, that a Xenia-bound Ford, traveling on the wrong side of the road forced the touring car off the highway at the sharp curve and drove on without stopping. The license number of the machine was not obtained.

AUTOISTS UNHURT BUT CAR WRECKED

Several from this place attended the last day of school at Mt. Pleasant Friday.

Mr. David Sheeley of Alpha and Mr. Charley Sheeley and daughters of Dayton were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt and family.

Mrs. Rufus Wical entertained quite a number of relatives and friends Sunday in honor of her husband's birthday anniversary.

Martha Jane Hanberry spent the past week in Columbus with her father, Mr. Rex Hanberry.

GRAF ZEPPELIN IS APPROACHING RIO

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 24.—The Graf Zeppelin passed over an outlying section of Maccio, Brazil, at 1:25 a. m. (12:25 a. m. E. D. T.) today according to reports received here.

The big airship is bound here from Pernambuco where she took off at 11:37 p. m. (10:37 p. m. E. D. T.) last night. Dr. Ekenner, commander of the Graf, had previously estimated his flying time between Pernambuco and Rio at eighteen hours.

Additional reports received here said that Dr. Ekenner had radioed he expected to pass over Bahia at 6 a. m. (5 a. m. E. D. T.) Bahia is about 475 miles from Pernambuco and these reports established the airship's speed at between seventy and seventy-five miles an hour—and, on schedule.

In a banker it's Integrity

in a cigarette it's Taste

GOOD REPUTATION and high standards—these are among the banker's chief assets. Likewise, Chesterfield's.

SMOKERS THE WORLD OVER stick to Chesterfield because of its thorough dependability of quality, its unchanging good taste.

GOOD TASTE!—What smoker would trade it for any number of cigarette claims? No Chesterfield smoker would. For here choice tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to a finer aroma and a richer, milder flavor to give you the utmost a cigarette can offer... "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS DECORATE GRAVES

RHEIMS, May 24.—Shivering in the bitter cold beneath menacing skies, a delegation of gold star mothers today viewed, probably for the last time in their lives, the graves of their sons in the cemetery of Seringes.

Fresh wreaths of flowers were laid upon the mounds as whistling winds out of clouded skies threatened an immediate downpour of drenching rain.

Among those visiting the cemetery was Mrs. Anna Platt, of Miami, Florida, who was determined to make the pilgrimage despite the fact a heart attack kept her to her hotel room all day yesterday. Supported by a nurse on one side and an army officer on the other, Mrs. Platt walked slowly into the burial ground. She remained only a few moments.

AUTOISTS HURT AS CAR HITS BRIDGE

Thrown out of the car to the road, Miss Hattie Bracelin and Lawrence Allen escaped serious injury when the roadster in which they were riding crashed into a concrete bridge on Home Ave., near the O. S. and S. O. Home entrance and plunged into the creek bed Thursday night. Allen suffered a severed artery in one arm and a gash on the leg and Miss Bracelin received painful but not serious bruises. Allen, the driver, swerved the car into the side of the bridge to avoid crashing into the rear of an auto which had stopped suddenly in the bridge and in which several girls were riding in the rumble seat. The roadster was badly damaged.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A GOOD CONSCIENCE—For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world. — 2 Cor. 1:12.

OBERRAMMERGAU

At the little village of Oberammergau, among the foothills of the Alps in Upper Bavaria, six thousand people will sit today through a ten-hour play that has been performed periodically on the same spot for nearly three centuries. The Oberammergauerspiel is a play of a vow made by the villagers in 1633, when a plague was raging in their vicinity. They have ever since regarded this dramatic portrayal of scenes from the life of Christ as a solemn act of religious worship. A performance is given each Sunday during the summer of every tenth year. All the world contributes to its audience.

The passion play may be said to be Oberammergau and Oberammergau to be the play. About 700 actors are required and they are all selected from the village itself. As the population of Oberammergau is hardly more than double that number it is not difficult to see how large a place in the life of the village the play occupies. The actors are chosen for their moral character, as well as their dramatic ability. They may be humble in their mundane callings; but they must live clean. The role of Christ is regarded as one of the highest earthly honors that can fall to man. This year it was conferred on a woodcarver, Alois Lang. Another woodcarver plays Judas. Calaphas is a blacksmith by trade. So it goes. The greatest disgrace that can come to a native of Oberammergau is to be refused the privilege of appearing in the passion play.

Although the play dates back almost 300 years, a careful revision of the text and arrangements of it was made by the parish priest at the beginning of the last century. The music for it was written by the parish schoolmaster in 1814. A tableau of typical import from the Old Testament prefaces each of the scenes from the life of Christ that form the basis of the play. The performances last from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening and are staged in an open air theatre.

The spectacle of an entire community, albeit a not very large one, continuing for three hundred years to carry out a vow made in the hope of staying off a plague in the seventeenth century is refreshing evidence that not all the world is afflicted with the mania for change which characterizes so much of our own dynamic life. The Oberammergauers are a quiet and contented people. They put on their passion play once in ten years; and for the other nine they make toys and carve crucifixes and rosaries to sell to the tourists whom the fame of their religious drama attracts to their village. Only among such a people could such an institution as the Oberammergauerspiel survive.

CONCERNING SAMARKAND

A brief dispatch from Russian Turkestan says that for the first time in modern history a group of non-Russian foreigners, mostly American correspondents, have been allowed within the gates of the city of Samarkand and have seen the marvelous sights of Tamerlane's ancient citadel.

If this item is accurate, the foreign visitors beheld sights worth viewing. Samarkand in its heyday was a city of sorts, and in the fourteenth century, in the time of Timur (Tamerlane), boasted palaces, schools and shrines which made it famous throughout the world. It harbored in the neighborhood of 150,000 people, quite a crowd for a medieval metropolis.

That, however, was the condition of the city during only one of several periods of emergence into importance and glory. Anciently, the place was called Maracanda, and was capital of the district known as Sogdiana, which schoolboys will recollect as one of those vague regions conquerors like Cyrus and Alexander were constantly invading and adding to their transitory empires. Indeed, Alexander almost completely wiped Maracanda from the face of the earth back in 329 B. C., and it seems to have lain semi-dormant until the Arabs retrieved it in the seventh century, gave it the name in which it now rejoices, and made it so brilliant and populous a center of their civilization that when Jenghiz Kahn attacked and destroyed the place in 1221 and reduced its population by three-quarters, over one hundred thousand soldiers were engaged in the defense.

Just now Samarkand is a Mohammedan city with a Russian lean-to at one side; and is a rather shabby town living largely on the reputation of the past and the fame of its old buildings and ruins, under a bolshevik regime which apparently has decided to see what can be accomplished by making it a show place. There ought to be some possibilities in that direction, particularly at this time with the archeological invasion moving steadily eastward from the Mediterranean and advancing even now through Persia.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

SCARS OF CIVILIZATION

News dispatches from New Orleans tells us motorists will one day travel along a lane of azaleas, wild roses, verbenas, poppies, and under the sheltering boughs of silver maples and royal palms, on their way from Florida to California along the road that is known as the Old Spanish Trail. Workers will be sponsored by women's clubs, civic clubs, and others. Here we have the next step in the development of automobile transportation. First we had to have smooth, hard roads. Then we had to have wider roads. Now we look to roads that will be beautiful. Beauty comes late in civilization but it rates high.

AN ITEM OF IMPORTANCE

Take this story from the New York Times. It has nothing to do with international politics or any other so-called great topic. But read it an ponder:

"The chances of conjugal harmony would be greatly enhanced if every husband remembered the date of his wife's birthday and wedding anniversary. Supreme Court Justice Ford asserted yesterday during trial of a $250,000 alienation suit, when a young husband appeared unable to recall the date of his marriage. Justice Ford then admitted that his own wife's birthday had nearly slipped his mind last Tuesday and was recalled to him only after he had noticed the date of his morning paper.

"I have never forgotten that event of our marriage anniversary," he said. "But on Tuesday I awoke completely oblivious to it. I happened to pick up my morning Times and looked at the headline. I saw it was the date of her anniversary. I quietly went into her room and offered felicitations and later placed a remembrance on her dressing table. So the day was saved."

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Since the Speewacks waved a farewell to Broadway and took the Hollywood trail, they have been going big. A Speewack, reader, is a successful playwright, and two Speewacks are two successful playwrights.

They wrote "The Jazz Singer" for George Jessel and "Bird in Hand" for the whole universe. Now Samuel has had his option taken up to continue with Paramount Pictures, and Bella has sold another play.

In between literature they practice car-trading. Quite recently traded a plate-glass Buick for a fire-engine-red Auburn roadster and are now back to normalcy with one of Henry's plus-A rattlers.

There's plenty of money in the Hollywood hive.

FORTUNE'S WHEEL

Step up and shake hands with Jean Drummond, 17, pretty and very Manhattan. Two weeks ago she was just Jean who earned a modest stipend posing for gowns in Fifth Avenue fashion shops. Then, the wheel of fortune spun around and when it stopped it was pointing right at Jean as the girl who.

Was selected as America's most beautiful girl model. Received an offer to appear in a Broadway production. Got a commission to go to Paris where she will receive a contract to model for a Paris fashion house.

Jean was picked out of 1,200 girls. And it all happened in a half-hour.

SHOCKING

Among our distinguished visitors of the day is the Baron Philippe de Rothschild, who says: "There's nothing in Paris like your night clubs here; I found them shocking."

Well, the gals at Will Oakland's and the Hollywood do peal down kinda close, but their performance is not one whit as shocking as that of some of the guests after about sixth-drink time.

LOVE WILL FIND A WAY WE SUPPOSE, BUT HE CERTAINLY PICKED A TOUGH SUBJECT

FARMERS ARE NOT LIKELY TO SURRENDER PRESENT HOLD ON CONGRESSIONAL SEATS IN SPITE OF COMING REAPPORTIONMENT

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The big city feller considers himself mighty slick, in comparison with his country cousin, but he is a simple-minded individual, after all.

Preliminary census estimates indicate that the recently completed national count of noses will show the country's urban communities to be entitled to 23 more seats than they now possess in the house of representatives in Washington; said 23 seats to be subtracted, presumably, from the total number at present occupied by legislators of the agricultural districts' selection.

On the strength of this advance calculation, which probably is accurate enough, the city slicker is sufficiently unsophisticated to fancy that he actually is on the eve of coming into control of the federal government, after writhing under rural regulations for the last 154 years.

The very fact that the urbanite is capable of supposing the farmer has any idea of releasing his full Nelson on congress so easily is ample proof that the city slicker is not so keen as he thinks he is. To be sure, agriculture no longer is in a voting majority in the United States.

However, during the 14 decades when it was, does anyone imagine it was so foolish as not to perfect a governmental machine guaranteed to keep on responding to the guidance of its minority of today, for a long time to come? Far from it. Out-voted though he is, the ruralist still is boss of the machine.

In the first place, even though the country folk should let the city people have their 23 additional seats in the house of representatives, the ruralites will remain dominant in the senate until a good many more states are industrialized than so process of concentration have effected materially thus far.

Look at our present U. S. senators' home towns! For every one of them from New York, Chicago or St. Louis, we find half a dozen from Boscobel, Jonesboro, Island Pond, Yellow Springs, McCook, Cooperstown, Medicine Park, Hoople—little burgs, many of them, too, and to read readily on the map. Cited enough senators have effected materially thus far.

Moreover, who knows that the big cities, which recent years of urbanization have added to so considerably, will get the 23 extra representatives they are counting on? For instance, Michigan?

Prospects are that the Wolverine state will be awarded five or six out of the 23—and it is safe betting that Detroit looks forward to tacking most of them upon her quota.

But suppose an agriculturally-controlled legislature at Lansing says, "No; we think it would be preferable not to re-district the state, but simply to elect our half dozen new congressmen at large."

Of course Detroit would howl, but the sound of howling in the great cities is sweet music in the ears of the ruralite, in his lone farm dwelling.

Another item, one gets a mistaken impression of the respective proportions of this country's urban and rural population from the line which the census bureau draws between them.

The census bureau deems everyone a city slicker who dwells in a town of 2,500 inhabitants or more. The fact is that a town of 2,500, or, in many instances, a great deal larger, is no city at all, in its likes and dislikes.

The cities which really squirm under what they regard as rural interference with their happiness are cities of maybe 100,000 population or over.

The truth is, the country's inclination to make rules concerning city folk's ways of enjoying themselves is the thing that particularly frets the nation's population centers.

When it comes to questions of large economic importance, like banking, trade, transportation and taxation, the cities always have run matters about as they chose. On such issues the average rural lawmaker becomes decidedly cuffed in his point of view soon after he arrives in Washington—but he never gets over being a farmer on the subject of the urbanites' morals.

If city folk think they will be free to raise all the whoopee they please, now that the 1930 census appears to be about to put them into a majority, they are likely to find they have

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

BROWN BEETLE OWES HIS LIFE TO HIS LEGS

Peter bent over until he was in danger of slipping from the bank into the water. Peter was glad to see the Beetle's mouth stretched in a broad grin. Nothing was the matter.

"I got a cramp in my legs!" chuckled Brown Water Beetle. "I tried to kick forward and I splashed backward. First time I've done that in a long while! That reminds me, you asked what the frills on my front legs were for."

"And you told me, they were 'suckers' to hold on to your catch with," interrupted Peter.

"Right!" Brown Beetle was pleased to think Peter had remembered. "Take a look at these hooks on my middle pair, will you? Believe me or not, I never lose my balance—these help me hold on to anything I want to. Never tried standing still in the mud at the bottom of the pool, did you? Well, it's not so easy, and I'd probably slide and find myself buried up to my eyes in ooze if my hooks didn't keep me steady. Good old hooks—without them I couldn't go for a long walk at the bottom of the pool."

As for crawling up the reeds—well, I might never get up for a breath of air and a glimpse of the world outside the pool if it weren't for them."

"I should think two such pairs of legs would be enough!" exclaimed Peter. "What do you use your third pair for?"

"For oars," replied Brown Beetle promptly. "Seeing how board and flat they are, maybe you'd have guessed it without my telling you. I'm pretty well supplied with legs, don't you think? I have a pair with which to walk under the water, one with which to climb out of the water and another with which to swim in the water."

"I call that luck," exclaimed Peter and envied Brown Beetle a little.

Next: "You Can't Have Everything!"

another guess coming. It is no cinch they are in that kind of a majority.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Veal Loaf Baked Potatoes
Stuffed Banana Salad
Individual Cherry Pies
Tea or Coffee

I don't usually advocate a fruit salad and a fruit dessert, too, in the same menu, but as one fruit is bland in flavor and the other acid, I think they combine fairly well. However, if you don't think so, it is your privilege to substitute something else for one or the other.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Banana Salads—Choose small bananas, peel and scoop out centers. Mix the filling with sliced fresh strawberries or shredded pineapple and a little cream cheese and salad dressing. If the salad is not to be served immediately, squeeze lemon juice over the banana to keep it from turning black. Garnish with a few salted peanuts.

Individual Cherry Pies—Cover small tins with good pastry, prick well and bake in hot oven; then remove from pans. Meantime cook canned cherries with enough granulated sugar to make rather a thick syrup; thicken very slightly with a teaspoonful of cornstarch dissolved in a tablespoonful of cold water. Cool and fill the pastry shells and dot with whipped cream. Serve on individual plates covered with small dollops.

Suggestions

To Make Meats Tasty
A little fresh liver added to leftover meat in making hash adds decidedly to the dish.

The flavor of veal is developed by slow and thorough cooking and the addition of fat.

Lamb or mutton may be roasted on a bed of tart apples.

Cheese melted in the sauce of creamed chicken is a good addition.

Creamed ham should be highly seasoned. A teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce to one cup of white sauce gives an added zest.

A thick slice of veal baked in milk is very good.

An oyster placed in the center of each sausage cake is a surprise dish.

A cup of currants cooked with a pot roast makes it delicious.

It is a good idea to place a bay leaf in the pan with roast pork.

Ham is good baked in pineapple juice.

Grape Sponge—One tablespoon granulated gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one cup grape juice, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-half cup sugar, two egg whites, pinch of salt. Soak gelatin in cold water for 10 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Add orange juice, lemon juice and sugar to the well beaten whites of the eggs, stirring constantly. Turn into a mold to chill and become firm, and serve with a soft custard made from the yolks of the two eggs.

Diet and Health

NERVES AND WEIGHT

"DEAR DOCTOR LULU: Do nerves have anything to do with the weight? Here is why I ask: My sister is one year older than I am, of the same height (5 feet 11 inch). She weighs 100 pounds at 17 years of age, and I weigh 117 at 16 years of age. We both love the sports and are equally matched in swimming, tennis, basketball, etc. Still, when it comes to meal times, I have to count my calories, while sister eats all she wants. She is inclined to be more nervous than I. Is that why she is so much thinner? C."

Yes, it might make the difference, C. All your sister's movements are probably quicker than yours, through her nervousness, so that she uses up more calories. But there is another point to be considered:

You think she eats the same amount that you do (and has the same physical activities), but she probably takes larger helpings, and second helpings, and you probably add butter to your vegetables, and take more sugar; and while you apparently eat the same amount, you may have 300 to 400 calories per meal more than she does. The only way you could tell would be to count the calories as well as yours.

Even as low as 100 calories a day, more than is needed for the internal and external activities, multiplied by 365, means 36,500 calories in a year; and as 4,000 C. represents a pound of fat, you could gain nine pounds a year on the 100 C. a day excess. And how easy it is to get 100 C. more than you actually need during the day, during the meals and between meals! Those who automatically stay the same weight year in and year out, also automatically regulate their caloric intake. You will find that if they eat a heavy lunch, for instance, they will have much less appetite for dinner, and instead of eating just for the pleasure of it, as those of us who have to fight overweight will do, they will take a very light meal.

Recently I met a girl, as I was coming from California, who was beautifully proportioned and normal weight. She told me she paid no attention to her diet at all; ate just what she seemed to want. She didn't think diet had much to do with weight! Her seat companion was a boy who was sent across the continent by people, alone. One day she hid him to lunch with her, and eat a good meal, she ate a r larger lunch than usual; there she wasn't hungry at dinner and wasn't going into the diet car. She acknowledged she ate if she wasn't hungry. "You have it!" I believe that if it of us who have to fight overweight would never eat except when really hungry, we wouldn't have darn thing to fight all our lives! But we eat whether we are hungry or not, at meal times, on force habit and because food tastes good. Ain't it the truth? And we eat satisfy food longings, rather than actual hunger. We have to fight mental condition as well as physical one.

We can fight that mental condition if we'll put our thoughts the reverse. When we think of the delicious piece of candy we like have, instead of dwelling on it, though, and going through an act of self-pity, just let's say to ourselves, "I don't want it; I stand candy!" and do this whatever the thought of candy or forbidden food comes up again, course, there is no reason why shouldn't have a little candy, and then, if we can take it in moderation, but most of us can't.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I have had many letters from women who were married when they were mere children. Most of them have been unhappy, discontented letters, but one or two have shown that a young couple really can meet and recognize their true mates at an early age, and do not regret their choice.

Even so, I still think that it is a great pity for young people not out of their teens, to marry. There are certain experiences dear to that particular age that they never can have at any other time in their lives. They may feel later on that they have been cheated of these girlhood and boyhood pleasures. And we do like to feel that once a marriage is consummated, it is likely to stick, in which case there are a good many years to enjoy after the wedding and few before, so why be in such a hurry?

"Dear Virginia Lee: My sweetheart and I are deeply in love with each other. We are not quite 17, and we would like to have your advice on whether or not we are old enough to get married. H. H."

"Please understand, Miss Lee, that we love each other very much. HIS SWEETHEART."

The sweetheart would have to be 21 and you at least 18 before you could be legally married without your parents' consent, dear. And, anyhow, I think you are very much too young to think of getting married. You are not educated yet, are you, and I am sure your boy friend, who is "not quite 17," could not earn enough to buy the rent, grocery and meat bills, etc., etc. You'll be married a long time—I hope—when the happy day day comes, so why not enjoy love and freedom from responsibility for a while longer and think of marriage?

"Dear Virginia Lee: Ever night I read your problems the heart in the paper. I n a letter from one whose name was signed E. B. H. You girls will not listen to the vice, don't marry young."

"I am just 17 and have been going with a fellow for months. At the end of the month I would have married him. Am thankful that I did because he is now out of ev and a very sickly boy. Even though I love him dearly, I loves me, we have decided that when he gets enough money in the bank to ms and start housekeeping too, I if at the end of the next three years we still love each other, and are sure we do, then will marry."

"He always says that there no one else for him, and I the same, but we are going play safe and find out what or not we are meant for as each other. BLUE EYE"

You are a sensible young coo dear, and I hope that the you have for each other will and that you will always be together.

TRUE BLUE: I suppose the friend is joking with you, you say he "insults you, but joking way." He wouldn't with you if he didn't like yo presume. If he asks you to d and seems to enjoy and seek company, he likes you a s time—I hope—when the happy day

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

My recent caution to mothers not to allow their daughters of 12 and 14 to use creams and rouges has brought to light the fact that many mothers apply bleaches to the heads of mere children. They are fearful lest, as time passes, the golden locks of their offspring will darken.

"I want my little daughter to retain her lovely light hair. What can I do?" mothers inquire of me. To these mothers I can only say that if their daughters are going to grow into brunettes, why try to stop Nature's evident plan for them?

Why use bleaches on the hair of a mere infant's head? Eventually the artificiality of such a treatment will be evident to everyone who glimpses the child. Many bleaches indubitably coarsen the hair. I have in mind one instance where a little girl's hair looked like wool because her mother peroxidized it. It was dry, stiff and a peculiar color. The result was that the young girl was ridiculed by her schoolmates and her mother was censured by all the women of the neighborhood—and justly so!

Whatever a child's coloring, it is beautiful. No artificiality can further enhance the beauty of a normally healthy child or of any child. Cleanliness and good health.

A child's scalp is extremely sensitive. The hair follicles are naturally not as hardy as those of an adult woman. The use of harmful bleaches will seriously impair the health of child's scalp, and limit the fruit activities of the hair follicle. Then by the time the child become old enough to concern her personal appearance for a sul of interest, she will find her thin, dry, brittle and discolored. And perhaps she'd rather I been a brunette after all!

Home runs are not what they used to be. In the gay nineties and even until ten years ago it was quite a feat for a ball player to sock out a circuit blow. In this era, however, home runs are becoming more and more commonplace. The lively ball has taken all the interest out of baseball or at least a good bit of it.

For instance on Thursday no fewer than twenty-six home runs were made in seven of ten major league games played, establishing a record as the previous mark was twenty-three homers in sixteen games (eight double-headers).

A survey also showed that forty-one pitchers paraded to and from the mounds at the various ball parks.

Sluggers may come and sluggers may go but the $80,000 kid, Babe Ruth, seems to go on forever. The Bambino scaled new heights in successive double-headers with the Athletics Wednesday and Thursday. In four games the Babe slammed six home runs, three in the first game Wednesday, two in the first half of Thursday's twin bill and his sixth in the nightcap, increasing his total for the season to twelve. This put him six days ahead of his schedule of a year or so ago when he collected sixty in one season.

The National League race is developing into a horse race this season. Five of the principal contenders are apparently so evenly matched that no one club is able to keep out in front of the van more than a few days at a time. At one time or another this season five teams have held the leadership. First it was New York, then Pittsburgh, then Chicago, then Brooklyn and now it is St. Louis. Tomorrow—who knows? One thing is certain—the team which wins the title will have no walkway.

Dan Howley's unfortunate Reds are again plugging the depths, having lost seven games in a row up until Friday. Cincinnati has been getting the pitching but it has been the same old story—weak batting. Possibly President Weir had better take another inventory as to the dymness of the bats the boys are using.

Looking streak notwithstanding, Xenia fans will turn out in large numbers Sunday for the Pittsburgh bill of the season with Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.

Howley has let it be known that Benton, newly acquired from New York in exchange for Hughie Crites, will make his debut with the Reds by pitching the first game, and this disclosure will increase the attendance.

DIRT TRACK AUTO RACES NEXT FRIDAY

Dirty track automobile races over the half-mile track at the Clark County Fairgrounds, Springfield, are being announced as a Memorial Day attraction.

Larry Beckett, veteran dirt-track driver, and leading Ohio entry, will drive Art Richter's eight-valve special, the car that broke the record for the New Bremen and Winchester, Ind., tracks last year.

Dusty Farno, Huntington, Ind., who has competed on almost every dirt track in the country, is another favorite. Henry Ziegenhaller, Dayton, has entered his Red Devil No. 13. He has never been out of the money in the last three years of competition. Walter Spence and Harry Daugherty of Springfield are also entered. There will be two eight mile and one twenty-five mile events and Racing Associates, sponsoring the program, is offering a total of $1,200 in cash prizes. There will also be a special match race between the two fastest cars on the track and a novelty race for antique cars.

RAIN HALTS LEAGUE GAME FRIDAY NIGHT IN NATIONAL LOOP

The first postponement of the Xenia softball season was made necessary Friday night when a thundershower prevented completion of a National League game between the Downtown Country Club and Graham Paints at Cox Athletic Field.

Prior to Friday, nineteen consecutive games had been played without a single postponement on account of inclement weather.

The Downtowners were leading Graham, 6 to 0 at the close of the third inning when rain began to fall. Time was called and when the shower showed no signs of abating play was resumed.

Graham had scored two runs and had two runners on base with two out in the first half of the fourth when rain again interrupted the pastime, making it necessary to call the game.

As a result of the postponement, a double-header will be played when the two teams meet again in the second round. Each half of the twin bill will be limited to seven innings.

I. G. A. DEALERS AT DISTRICT MEETING HERE WEDNESDAY

Three hundred and fifty I. G. A. dealers, salesmen and members of their families, attended a district meeting of the I. G. A. at Masonic Temple, here Wednesday evening.

A general discussion of plans for the summer campaign was the chief feature of the program. H. E. Eavey, chairman of the national buyers committee of the I. G. A., gave an informal address in which he stressed modern merchandising methods and urged local I. G. A. dealers to adopt the newest and most effective merchandising programs.

Vocal solos by Miss Eleanor McDonnell were enjoyable features of the program. Interesting displays illustrating effective display plans were shown about the hall.

Plans for the I. G. A. convention in Dayton, August 25-26 were presented at the meeting. The territory in the convention district includes Madison, Bellefontaine, Xenia, Evansville, Richmond, Huntington and Ft. Wayne, Ind., Lexington, Ky., Charleston, W. Va., and Sturgis, Mich.

Refreshments were served during the evening, in charge of Jacob Kany.

FLOAT—
USING

LESSON FIVE

The next step is to apply what you have already learned. Enter the water and go in the dead man's float, then move your legs up and down just as you did while sitting on the edge of the pool.

You will find it very difficult to keep your legs from bending. To point your toes and arch your back as you did in the dead man's float.

The easiest way to arch your back is to raise your head so that the eyes are at the water level.

Much practice is required on the leg movement because it is one-half the power needed in swimming.

In timing, the kick should be two beats to the second.

Continue this practice until you find no difficulty in making progress without the aid of the hands other than to keep them locked overhead.

Farm Notes

FIELD MEETING FOR CATTLE FEEDERS

The Experimental Station announces a Field Meeting for cattle feeders at the Thomas Johnson farm, located on U. S. Route No. 40, about two miles west of the Columbus city limits, on Thursday afternoon, May 29. Four lots of yearling steers, 100 in each lot, have been fed experimentally, under the direction of Paul Gerlaugh, Chief of the Department of Animal Industry at the Ohio Experiment Station, on this farm since last December. The steers are comparing different protein concentrates in connection with a ration containing ground ear corn, silage, and hay. All lots have received the same amount of feed, including the protein concentrate.

Lot 1 received meal; Lot 2 received cottonseed meal; while whole soybeans are fed to Lot 3. A mixture of equal parts of these three protein concentrates is fed to Lot 4. The soybeans used in the test were grown on the Johnson farm.

The program will commence at one o'clock, when Paul Hackett, manager of the farm, will show the experimental cattle and explain the results obtained by using the different sources of protein.

In addition to showing the experimental cattle Mr. Hackett will also show the Hereford and the Angus steer calves that are on feed, and from which the Johnson entries in the Carlot Show at the coming State Fair will be selected.

C. W. Gay, Head of the Animal Husbandry Department at the Ohio State University, will serve as chairman, and E. S. Bayard, editor-in-chief of the Ohio Farmer, Pennsylvania Farmer, and Michigan Farmer, will be the chief speaker on the program to be held after the cattle are seen and the results presented.

CITY TERMINATES POWER CONTRACT TO OPEN DISCUSSIONS

City Commission has authorized City Auditor H. A. Higgins to notify The Dayton Power and Light Co. that the present city street lighting contract will be cancelled at the expiration of the present year, paving the way for possible re-opening of negotiations with the company for a new contract and marking the first step in the fight for a more satisfactory rate schedule for Xenia.

The present street lighting ordinance was passed by the former City Commission last December for five years but contained a clause making it possible for the present commission to cancel the contract at the expiration of one year upon giving the company written notice of 120 days.

With expiration of the street lighting contract December 31 this year, all relations with the Dayton Power and Light Co. will end at the same time, including the company's Xenia franchise, its contract for domestic and commercial lighting and its natural gas contract.

The street lighting ordinance now in effect represents a saving to the city of $965 over the former contract under which the city has been paying $8,895 annually for ten years.

The present rate for street lighting is $25 for each 100 candle power lamp used; $38 for each $250 candle power lamp; $50 for each 400 C. P. L. and $58 for each 600 C. P. L.

COMMITTEES NAMED FOR HOME REUNION

Committees have been selected by the Association of Ex-Pupils of the O. S. & S. O. Home and have been appointed to plan the golden jubilee reunion to be held at the institution July 1, 2 and 3 when the largest reunion crowd in history is expected.

George W. Robertson, president, has selected a reception committee, a committee for each day of the reunion and for the following other activities: speakers, banquet, music, dance, pavilion, programs, badges, baseball, children's sports, refreshment stand, circus, memorial, publicity, entertainment, and men's smoker.

Mr. Robertson is also assembling the names of all ex-pupils of the association, who will be especially honored at the meeting because of its anniversary nature. Home employees have also been enlisted to co-operate with the reunion committees to make the affair a success.

NEW JASPER

One of the most interesting meetings ever held in the county by the Religious Council of Education was that of the Sunday School convention held at New Jasper M. E. Church last Sunday afternoon. A good representation from Sunday schools all over the county was present and after business meeting with the president, W. C. St. John, chairman, a good program was rendered. Mrs. Richard McClelland delighted the audience with a solo.

Mrs. John Brennan, of Xenia First M. E. Church gave a talk. Her subject was "The Cradle Roll." After this Mrs. James Wilson, III, of the Presbyterian Church, Xenia, talked about interesting the primary children. Then Mrs. Walter Barnett of Friends Church, Jamestown, talked to juniors and Mrs. Emma Zell to adult Bible class. All were exceptionally good and very beneficial.

Mr. Schultz, of Dayton, gave a fine address. The program closed by the audience singing "Abide With Me." The following officers were elected: president, H. E. Bales; first vice-president, Harry Nagley; second vice-president, Mr. Liming; treasurer, Pearl Ervin; secretary, Stella Barnett.

GREENE COUNTY HAS PROMINENT PART IN FIRST SCOUT CIRCUS

More than 200 Greene County Boy Scouts and Scout officials took part in the Scout circus given by the Council in the physical education building at Wittenberg College, Friday evening.

The event was a mammoth display of the diversified activities of the Boy Scout troops in Greene County area and, although the first ever given, was acclaimed a success. Approximately 3,000 witnessed the performance and about 1,000 Scouts took part in the program.

Greene was the only county which had every troop represented in the circus and Troop 40, Xenia's colored troop of which E. A. Roberts is Scoutmaster, teamed with a colored troop from Springfield to give one of the feature performances of the circus. The colored Scouts demonstrated pyramid building, gave exhibitions of juggling and clogging and signaling and their performance was loudly applauded.

A special first aid demonstration by Troop 56 of Yellow Springs, of which Merrill Dawson is scoutmaster, was another feature that attracted considerable attention. The Scouts used a miniature electric power line to demonstrate a patient being shocked by electricity, a flashlight arrangement being used to represent sparks from the wire. A boy, untrained in relief methods, went to his assistance and was shocked. Scoutmaster then appeared on the scene, rescued both and demonstrated resuscitation methods.

Troop 62 of the O. S. and S. O. Home had forty Scouts in the program, taking part in the acts which showed Scout games and the Home Cadet Band directed by Prof. H. E. Seall, furnished music for the program. Troop 54, Osborn, gave a stalling demonstration. Troop 41, Xenia, under Scoutmaster Carl Pramer staged a paper bag relay and Troop 43, under the Rev. Russell Burkett, scoutmaster and Troop 45, under Scoutmaster E. L. Blackburn, also took part in the program.

The participating Scouts made a grand entry in formation at the beginning of the circus. Rope tricks, whip cracking, demonstrations of making and breaking camp, feats of physical strength, foot drills, different methods of signaling and a display of airplane models were features of the circus. A demonstration in fire prevention methods was another feature and not the least of the entertainment was a band of clowns giving humorous stunts.

Counties taking part included Greene, Logan, Champaign, Clark and Clinton, comprising sixty-four Scout troops with an active membership of 1,350 Scouts.

XENIA INTERESTED IN APPLICATION TO EXTEND BUS ROUTE

Xenia business men and organizations are interested in the application of Central Ohio Lines, Inc., which operates bus service between Xenia and Chillicothe, for a franchise to extend its service from Xenia to Dayton by way of Osborn.

Central Ohio Lines, Inc., was formed by Carl E. Fent, Jamestown, who merged his Xenia-Washington C. H. line with a bus service to Chillicothe to form the new corporation offering through bus services. The extension to Dayton would not parallel any other transportation service except from Osborn to Dayton where the company already holds a franchise.

Xenians are becoming interested in the project because it promises the first transportation outlet between Osborn and Fairfield and Xenia, and would service the entire northwest part of Greene County which is now without direct transportation connection with the county seat. Increased industrial development of Osborn and Fairfield adds to the importance of the connecting transportation link with Xenia.

Application of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to discontinue its trains between Dayton and Chillicothe, is expected to add to the importance of the through bus service. The line, in addition to its Xenia connection, operates a branch service from Jamestown to Springfield by way of Cedarville, connecting through trips are scheduled. The application for the extension will be heard before attorney examiners for the state utility commission Friday, June 6, at 10 a. m. it is announced.

COUNTY VOTES DRY IN MAGAZINE POLL ON ENFORCEMENT

Figures released by The Literary Digest upon completion of the nationwide poll conducted by the magazine on the prohibition question disclosed that Xenia and three Greene County villages cast majorities in favor of enforcement of prohibition "as is."

Of a total of 642 votes cast by Xenians, 335, or more than half, are listed in the enforcement column, while there were 106 votes for modification and 201 votes for repeal of the Volstead law.

Cedarville, Jamestown and Yellow Springs also favored enforcement. Cedarville's total of sixty-three votes was divided as follows: for enforcement, forty-five; for modification, twelve; for repeal, six.

Jamestown residents cast 128 votes, including seventy-seven for enforcement; twenty-nine for modification and twenty-two for repeal. Yellow Springs was also in the dry column casting 145 votes of which ninety were for enforcement, thirty-one for modification and twenty-four for repeal.

DISMISS CHARGE OF GASOLINE THEFT IN COURT ON SATURDAY

Because it was a case of mistaken identity an affidavit filed against Harley L. Koons, 55, Dayton, charging him with theft of gasoline for the alleged theft of ten gallons of gasoline from James Hoover, Jamestown filling station owner, last May 5, was dismissed Saturday morning by Municipal Judge E. D. Smith.

Koons was believed to have been the owner and possibly the driver of an auto which stopped at Hoover's filling station recently and obtained ten gallons of gas. The motorist drove away without paying but Hoover obtained what he thought was the license number of the machine.

Investigation by Xenia police disclosed that the license had been issued to Harley Koons, Dayton. Hoover filed an affidavit against Koons and the latter was arrested by Dayton police and returned to Xenia late Friday night. Hoover came to police headquarters to identify the suspect but said he was not the right man.

The filling station owner was told to report in court Saturday morning and when he failed to appear Koons was discharged from custody.

PAINTERSVILLE

Two hundred and fifty persons enjoyed the school reunion at Paintersville Friday evening. The dinner was served by the patrons, and Mr. Hollingsworth, desiring to do his part, donated the ice cream. The tables were decorated in patriotic colors. Mr. Hollingsworth, teacher for the past fifteen years, closed his school with an impressive ceremony. He expressed his gratefulness to God for the good health he had enjoyed making it possible for him to teach thirty years without missing a single day on account of sickness.

His custom has been to present each pupil attending school each day throughout the term with a dollar bill. However, this being the last year of his teaching in Paintersville he wished to leave with the twenty-two prize winners a better remembrance, so he gave each a Bible. To the remaining pupils were presented New Testaments. The school exercises were closed by the children repeating the Ten Commandments in rhyme.

The following former teachers were heard from relating reminiscences of days spent in this community and in the school room: Mr. John Thomas of Wilmington, Mr. A. E. Faulkner, Xenia, Mr. C. A. DeVoe, superintendent of Jefferson Twp. Schools; Mrs. Mary Miller DeVoe, teacher in Xenia Twp.; Mrs. Ora Pagett Mason, of Paintersville; Mr. Harold Fawcett, Xenia.

Mr. H. C. Aultman, county superintendent, who has been attending high school commencements and presenting diplomas every night for the past week declared he saw the finest diplomas handed out at this commencement that he had ever seen. A letter was read from another teacher, Mrs. Emma Chedister Johnson, of Washington, C. H.

Music was furnished by Mr. Grant Loderbach, Jesse Ary and Mrs. Ora Mason.

The Hollingsworth brothers rendered a number of accordion and vocal selections.

Mrs. Christy has returned to Spring Valley after spending a few weeks here at her home.

ATTEND MEETING

Members of the Greene County Board of Elections and Earl Short, clerk of the board, attended the two-day session of election officials of Ohio's eighty-eight counties at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus Thursday and Friday, called by State Secretary Clarence J. Brown to explain the state's new election laws. County election officials were notified to adhere strictly to the new code.

GREENE COUNTY HAS PROMINENT PART IN FIRST SCOUT CIRCUS

More than 200 Greene County Boy Scouts and Scout officials took part in the Scout circus given by the Council in the physical education building at Wittenberg College, Friday evening.

The event was a mammoth display of the diversified activities of the Boy Scout troops in Greene County area and, although the first ever given, was acclaimed a success. Approximately 3,000 witnessed the performance and about 1,000 Scouts took part in the program.

Greene was the only county which had every troop represented in the circus and Troop 40, Xenia's colored troop of which E. A. Roberts is Scoutmaster, teamed with a colored troop from Springfield to give one of the feature performances of the circus. The colored Scouts demonstrated pyramid building, gave exhibitions of juggling and clogging and signaling and their performance was loudly applauded.

A special first aid demonstration by Troop 56 of Yellow Springs, of which Merrill Dawson is scoutmaster, was another feature that attracted considerable attention. The Scouts used a miniature electric power line to demonstrate a patient being shocked by electricity, a flashlight arrangement being used to represent sparks from the wire. A boy, untrained in relief methods, went to his assistance and was shocked. Scoutmaster then appeared on the scene, rescued both and demonstrated resuscitation methods.

Troop 62 of the O. S. and S. O. Home had forty Scouts in the program, taking part in the acts which showed Scout games and the Home Cadet Band directed by Prof. H. E. Seall, furnished music for the program. Troop 54, Osborn, gave a stalling demonstration. Troop 41, Xenia, under Scoutmaster Carl Pramer staged a paper bag relay and Troop 43, under the Rev. Russell Burkett, scoutmaster and Troop 45, under Scoutmaster E. L. Blackburn, also took part in the program.

The participating Scouts made a grand entry in formation at the beginning of the circus. Rope tricks, whip cracking, demonstrations of making and breaking camp, feats of physical strength, foot drills, different methods of signaling and a display of airplane models were features of the circus. A demonstration in fire prevention methods was another feature and not the least of the entertainment was a band of clowns giving humorous stunts.

Counties taking part included Greene, Logan, Champaign, Clark and Clinton, comprising sixty-four Scout troops with an active membership of 1

DAD'S GIRL EDNA ROBB WEBSTER THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST: Clara Dee Forester is the motherless, only daughter of a millionaire. Petted, pampered and living a hectic life of idle extravagance. Disgusted with the wealthy young set, her father left her one dollar in his will, in the hope that some quality in her would respond to the situation and make her a successful woman. Clara Dee goes to Mother Flynn's boarding house to live. She looks for a position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

A week had passed—seven days of renewed hopes and bitter disappointments, each with its startling and repellent discoveries. She would never again think that life could be dull and monotonous—but she had found that it could be repulsive and cruel. During the first few days, the mail had contained forwarded letters for her—on expensively engraved stationery with imposing seals—notes of sympathy and condolence from her host of friends in her former life, expressing carefully phrased wishes for her uncertain future. But these had ceased to arrive—each had done his or her duty and retired from all but a fast fading memory of her. Quite as if she had died and were already forgotten. But she was aware that she was not only very much alive and in need of money on which to live, but her rent was due; and besides, the ten dollar bill, with which to pay one more week's board, she had just seventeen cents. By walking farther in one day than she had been accustomed to do formerly in weeks, and satisfying her hunger at noon with ten or fifteen cents worth of food—she had managed that balance.

She found Mrs. Flynn in the kitchen with her huge arms, bared to the elbow, before a sink of hot, soapy water, reducing the stacks of soiled dishes while the perspiration steamed down her red face. Clara Dee had never thought about what Mrs. Flynn did after supper—the dishes she had either expected—were magically cleaned by good fairies or she hadn't thought of them at all. Clara Dee, the petted child of luxury, who had been served and considered by friends and servants, instantly forgot her own pitiful predicament in her genuine sympathy for her landlady. "Why, please let me help you," she entreated. "I never supposed you did all this alone. I'd be glad to help you every night if you'd let me, Mrs. Flynn."

She picked up a towel and began to dry the rows of shining, scalded plates in the rack. Thomas had been justified in declaring that Mrs. Flynn kept a clean establishment. What her boarders failed to receive in delicacies and luxury, they enjoyed in absolute cleanliness.

"Shore, child, and I knowed ye'd be tryin' to get yer sum o' a weak, slim little thing, and all this is tellin' on ye. I been after watchin' ye and I reckon as how ye have no job yet!" with motherly concern. Clara Dee shook her head wearily. "No, and I don't know where else to try, Mrs. Flynn. Everywhere I go they want references and experience, or when they advertise 'no experience necessary' there are so many there that they never seem to see me. If they do, they just stare at me as if I were an impostor or a thief or something equally undesirable. I must not look right."

"Shure," understandingly, "and ye don't. Ye look like the lady ye are and ye don't be after belongin' wad de rest of them."

"But what am I to do? Being a lady doesn't help me any in these particular circumstances. I came down tonight to pay my board, but I shan't be able to pay for another week. If I don't get work, I must advertise 'no experience necessary' there are so many there that they never seem to see me. If they do, they just stare at me as if I were an impostor or a thief or something equally undesirable. I must not look right."

"Well, now, I can't keep ye fer nothin', much as I'd be glad to, but if ye wish, I'll be after makin' it eight dollars 'till ye get work, and ye can be helpin' me like this fer awhile."

"Oh! I shall be glad to, and thank you so much. You are so kind!" Her voice quavered, and in another moment she was weeping out the bitterness of her heart on Mrs. Flynn's ample bosom.

"Thar now, do be gettin' along wid ye an' gettin' some sleep. Ye look plum tuckered out," she declared, gently, when Clara Dee had wiped away some of the loneliness and disappointment.

"Thank you so much, dear Mother Flynn, for—your shoulder to cry on and everything," she said gratefully, and bade her a near cheerful good-night.

But the next day, though she condescended to answer an advertisement for a girl to operate a machine in a factory, the employer man all but laughed in her face and hired an Italian girl no older nor stronger looking than herself. She resolved to make some kind of a change in her appearance, and spent the whole evening experimenting. She borrowed a needle and thread from Mrs. Flynn, slashed a generous width from one of her skirts, and sewed it up again. The stitches resembled the pattern of a rail fence and the skirt was so tight she could scarcely pull it over her shoulders, but it looked more like those worn by the girls she was trying to copy, so she was satisfied. With a few strands of her jet black hair, she decorated her cheeks and smooth white forehead with spit curls, drew on a pair of sheer light stockings and her highest spike-heeled pumps. The results were hideously pitiful, but her dainty black and white and gray-eyed beauty was unchanged. In fact, the emphasis which had heretofore favored her clothes was not diverted to her more personal charms.

The next day she applied at a telephone exchange for a position as student operator. The salary would be very small, she realized, but it would be better than earning nothing at all, and she would be learning something. It wasn't her choice of an occupation, the work would be extremely monotonous and afford little or no opportunity for advancement. But she was so crushingly disappointed when informed that the vacancies were all filled, that she could have

ONCE VILLAGE BARTENDER, NOW MASEFIELD IS POET LAUREATE

NEW YORK, May 24.—Down in Greenwich Village the oldsters are rejoicing. For a youth New York's Latin quarter remembers as a bartender in Luke O'Connor's saloon has been made poet laureate of England.

His Friend O'Connor

Masefield's career in the Village was brief, but on visits to this country since he never failed to look up Luke O'Connor, the man who cast a friendly eye upon the wanderer and gave him a job at $10 a month. And for this reason the Village claims him as one of its own.

The venerable Kipling was considered for the honor but Kipling's militant verse has defeated this end. And Masefield is known as "the poet of peace."

His Duties

In later years Masefield wrote of his New York experiences to a friend. "I, who was not an artist," he wrote, "and could not mix the subtle drinks in vogue, might only serve beer and cigars. If necessary, I had to take a tray laden with curious drinks to men living in the hotel or loafing at the bar tables, reading the papers."

"I had to see that the piping, through which the beer ran to the tanks, was kept packed in ice. I had to keep the bar ice-box filled from the cold storage cellar. I had to keep the free lunch counter supplied with such food as pretzels, sliced bologna, sausage, sardines, salt beef, rye bread and potato salad."

And the man whose tasks there were became England's poet laureate. No wonder the village rejoices!

BLACKHAND LETTER WRITER IS SOUGHT

Search for the author of a black-hand letter received by Charles Haney, Jamestown barber, threatening to "take him for a ride" and "put him on the spot" in the event he failed to deliver $500 to the One-Mile schoolhouse west of the village, is being made by postal inspectors.

Haney was also ordered to discontinue operation of his barber shop on Sunday, to cease "harboring gangsters" and to "stop card playing in the rear."

The letter, adorned at the top with a black revolver in the act of belching forth bullets and at the bottom with a black hand drawing, added that non-compliance with the demands of the signer means for the barber, "the Black Box, five-foot down covered with sod on which the dandelions will grow."

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

The Little Theater Guild, this column believes, is to be congratulated in its selection of Fred Flynn as its president for the coming year, determined upon at the annual election at the Parish House rally Thursday evening.

Your correspondent has no way of telling, at this early date, whether Mr. Flynn will make a good president, but, if he is interested enough to give some time to the venture, this department believes that his natural enthusiasm will prove a boon to the Guild and that he will be a capable leader.

Mr. Flynn brings buoyant enthusiasm to every undertaking he assumes, and it is this sparkle that may be needed not only to make the Guild live another year, but to make it gather momentum during that time.

A year or so ago your correspondent witnessed the phenomenon of Mr. Flynn being busy and enthusiastically engaged in the rather thankless task of "putting over" a meeting of the Central High School Alumni Association. It is apparently safe to say that anyone who could arouse that much enthusiasm over a high school alumni meeting should bring considerable enthusiasm to the more sprightly task of promoting the Theater Guild. And if he works as hard for the Guild as he did for the alumni group, we just bet you that the new president will turn out to be a hum-dinger.

The presentation of the play before the Guild members Thursday evening suggests the possibility of making one-act plays for consumption of Guild members only, a portion of the organization.

While continuing its policy of giving four public performances annually, the Guild might, in a less pretentious manner, stage one-act plays at shorter periods for its members, thus giving more members an opportunity for dramatic expression, and developing talent both for the stage and for directorial roles. These might be given at monthly dinners, or the program might be varied at intervals by talks by dramatic art teachers or others connected with the drama, much to the edification and entertainment of the Guild group.

INFLUENCE OF MOVIE ON CHILDREN SHOWN AT SCIENTISTS' MEET

paper on "Postural Preferences of Human Sleepers," by Dr. H. M. Johnson and G. E. Weigand, of the Simmons Investigation of Sleep, at Mellon Institute. A stereopticon exhibit showed the favorite postures in which typical individuals take their rest.

For a bed to be properly designed it must permit the sleeper to find at least a dozen grossly different bodily positions that he can hold in comfort for several minutes at a time, Dr. Johnson said.

"If the bedding equipment permits," he asserted, "the sleeper will spend considerable time resting on the right side, the left side, his back and his front. He will change from one gross position to another between twenty-five and forty-five times on a typical night, although on the next morning he may remember that he occupied only two or three of these poses. In all the positions that he holds for considerable times, the spinal column is bowed and twisted spirally, and at least three of his four limbs are bent. As a rule the various bodily positions are taken in a pretty definite order, which indicates that each of them contributes each share to the occurrence of complete rest. None of the sleeping poses of healthy people resemble those which the doctors ordinarily recommend. In none of them is the muscular system fully relaxed. Some of the ones generally favored look almost grotesque. One child has been observed sleeping in a half-kneeling pose, almost on his front, with knees drawn up, and his head resting upon his arms, which are crossed on the pillow."

The study was made by means of motion picture cameras, in an experimental dormitory at Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, in collaboration with George E. Weigand.

"The Discrimination of Temporal Qualities of Visual Patterns in the White Rat," by David F. Boder, Lewis Institute, of Chicago; and "The Effect of Incidental Stimuli on Maze Learning With the White Rat," by James R. Patrick, Ohio University, were other papers presented.

Prof. R. H. Wheeler, University of Kansas, presided over the meeting.

Possible explanation for the errors which arise so often in the presentation of testimony at court trials developed at the afternoon session when Prof. Theodore Perkins, of the University of Kansas, presented a paper on the "Symmetry in Visual Memory." The address promised to be one of technical nature but proved to be of direct practical interest.

Educators probably will be interested in the paper presented by H. B. Reed, Kansas State Teachers' College, on "The Influence of Training on Changes in Variability in Achievement." Reed claims that equal training makes people more alike and that the amount of similarity varies directly according to the amount of improvement made in training and the amount of difference between individuals before beginning of experimental training.

Contradictory studies on the same subject have been made by Thorndyke and others to show that training increases individual differences but Reed states that these results were obtained by a faulty method of measurement. He described two new experiments he has developed to prove the invalidity of the opposite results.

Officers will be elected Saturday afternoon and the conference will end with a dinner Saturday evening.

Other papers read before the afternoon sessions were "The Role of Head Movements in Auditory Localization" by P. T. Young, University of Illinois, showing that the ability to freely move the head is an aid in hearing; "The Influence of Four Different Interpolated Activities Upon Retention," John A. McGeach, University of Arkansas; "Some Aspects of the Psychophysics of the Vibrate" by Joseph Tiffin, University of Iowa; "A Comparison of Tactile Reading with Lip Reading in Relation to Consonantal Qualities" by Milton A. Welchbrodt, Northwestern University; "A Study of Successive Brightness Discrimination in Chicks," Margery G. Cutsforth, University of Kansas; "The Monaural Phase Effect with Pure Binary Harmonies" by Willis Beasley, Ohio State University; "The Differential Chromatic Thresholds of the Spectral Colors" by D. McL. Purdy, University of Kansas; "Individual Differences in the Production of Temporal Intervals" by Herbert Woodrow, University of Illinois; and "The Blindness of the So-Called Blind Spot" by Harry H. DeSilva, University of Kansas.

Prof. C. A. Ruckmick, and Prof. J. P. Porter, Ohio University, presided over the two meetings.

HERMAN EAVEY TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

Herman Eavey, who has served two four-year terms as a member of the Board of Greene County Commissioners, announced his candidacy for re-nomination on the Republican ticket at the August 12 primary, Saturday. He has not yet filed his petition of candidacy with the board of elections. Terms of A. E. Beam and J. Harve Lackey, the other two commissioners, do not expire this year. Eavey is expected to have opposition from John A. North, former county commissioner.

Maude Adams Plans Return After Years of Seclusion

Noted Theatrical Star of Other Days Will Appear in a Modern Romantic Comedy

MAUDE ADAMS AS "PETER PAN"

AS SHE IS TO-DAY.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Is Maude Adams coming back? The news that America's best-loved stage star will return to the footlights this fall has created a sensation on excitement-weary Broadway.

It is thirteen long years since the elfin Maude at the height of her fame quit her theatrical kingdom to disappear into a mystery-cooked seclusion.

At that time the frail, wistful star who had enchanted millions in "Peter Pan" said that she had read her last stage line.

This announcement was made shortly after she had suffered a collapse while playing in "A Kiss for Cinderella." Ever since that time the career of Maude Adams has been a secret known only to herself.

From time to time rumors of her being ill or of contemplating marriage have crept out from her guarded retreats on Long Island and the Catskill Mountains. When she, a non-Catholic, presented her beautiful Long Island estate to the Roman Catholic Sisterhood of the Lady of Retreat, Broadway heard that she was entering that cloistered order.

For years reports that the star was working on an invention that would revolutionize the lighting effects in motion pictures were published in newspapers.

But Maude had nothing to say—she was satisfied to let Broadway think what it liked. When in 1927, the University of Wisconsin honored her with an L. L. D., she again had nothing to say to the world which had once worshipped her.

Charles L. Wagner, a concert manager, announced about eighteen months ago that the secretive star had agreed to go on tour giving a series of readings. Nothing came of it.

The word just given out by the Erlanger interests that a prominent American playwright is writing a romantic modern comedy for her hit the theatrical world like a bolt from the blue.

Broadway wisecracks are scoffing at the possibility of Maude attempting a comeback. She is fifty-eight years old, they say; her name has been off the billboards for over a dozen years, and theatre-goers forget.

But the Erlanger interests are proceeding with their plans. A flood of letters from all parts of the country, that started when the news of the star's return was first printed, has convinced them that Maude Adams is far from forgotten.

Maude was first lifted to stardom when she played opposite the late John Drew in "The Masked Ball." The plays in which she was most widely acclaimed were "Peter Pan," "What Every Woman Knows," "The Little Minister" and "Quality Street," all written by Barrie. Her appearance in "Roméo and Juliet," "Twelfth Night," and "As you Like It" also won her great renown.

APPEAL REVERSAL TO SUPREME COURT

Seeking reversal of the action of the second district court of appeals which had previously reversed the conviction in Common Pleas Court of Forest Nooks, colored, and Samuel Wallace on charges of chicken stealing, an appeal was filed by the state in Ohio Supreme Court Friday.

Nooks and Wallace were each found guilty of grand larceny and sentenced to terms of from one to seven years in Ohio Penitentiary for the alleged theft of forty chickens valued at $40 from Leonard Flatter, Osborn farmer, the night of September 8, 1929.

Their convictions were reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals because of refusal of the trial court to permit the introduction of defense testimony intended to impeach and discredit the evidence of the principal state's witnesses.

Star Gazing

By RADIE HARRIS

Converted baby talk into American dollars and "boop-a-dooped" herself to fame.

Real name is Helen Schroeder. Born in New York City, Aug. 4, 1908.

Attended St. Anselm's Convent and couldn't decide whether she wanted to become an actress or a nun.

Decided on the former, but couldn't gather up enough courage to tell anyone about it, so used to sit all day long in casting agencies, hoping that some day someone would come along and ask her if she would like a job. One day four men asked at once. They were the Four Marx Bros.

In Vaudeville
Appeared with them in vaudeville act for two years but was never allowed to sing. Crossed ocean all alone to join company in London. Lost passport on boat and spent entire trip in ship library waiting through thousands of books before she found the one in which she had left it. Has never been in library since.

Arrived in Liverpool with $7 in her pocket. No one at pier to meet her so took a cab and asked to be taken to a hotel. Was driven to most expensive hotel in London. Rescued in the nick of time—just before her bill was due.

Had her first opportunity of singing on the London stage. When she finished the manager of the house asked the Marx Bros. where in !!XX?? they had picked up such a squeaky voice? She was politely informed NEVER under any circumstances to sing again. So she returned to America and gave auditions in every cafe, cellar and roof in New York. Was turned down unanimously.

Had reached the point where she didn't know where her next meal was coming from when she tried out for Paul Ash at the Paramount Theater. Was accepted by him despite the disapproval of everyone, who claimed that her "baby" voice would never be heard in a huge auditorium. In one year proved loud enough to echo round the world.

*Was terrific flop in first screen test. Signed for part in "Nothing But the Truth" only at insistence of Richard Dix. Received $5,000 for seventeen days' work and didn't believe there was so much money in the whole world.

Confesses to a shattered illusion when she first met Richard Dix. He was eating ham and beans. Always lived for the day when she could go into a store and order anything she wanted without first asking price. Satisfied her ambition by buying handkerchief blindfolded for $35. Now considers anything over $250 exorbitant.

Knows Her Friends
Isn't glib about "friendship." Has had too many people, for whom she once wasn't good enough, now offer to throw parties for her.

Doesn't resent her imitators. Is always sponsoring "Helen Kane Contests" at her own expense. Claims the biggest thrill of her life was the first evening she wore her ermine wrap.

When she visits her married sister, her young niece charges all the children in the neighborhood three pins for looking at her. Recently, made her visit her school to convince everyone that Helen Kane REALLY was her aunt.

Would give half of her success to have had her mother live to see it. An avid movie fan, she died just before Helen was assigned her first picture.

POUND AND ONE HALF INFANT REPORTED

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and weighed one and one half pounds at birth. The infant is clothed only in rolls of cotton and is fed every hour with a tiny dropper.

HELD AS DESERTER

Charged with desertion from the navy, John F. Clark, 23, Xenia, was arrested by police Friday and is being held for naval authorities. It is claimed that Clark, assigned to the U. S. S. Arctic battleship failed to return to duty May 14 after being on a leave of absence. He will be returned to New York City for trial before a court martial as a straggler.
